INTRODUCTION

WELCOME TO BALL MASTERY AT HOME.

This guide was created for young players who want to improve outside of team practice.

You do not need a full field, expensive equipment, or a perfect training space. You need one ball, a small area, and the discipline to train with purpose.

Over the next four weeks, players will work on ball control, first touch, weak foot confidence, coordination, rhythm, creativity, and movement with the ball.

FOR PLAYERS

A training plan you can follow on your own.

FOR PARENTS

A simple structure to support your child without needing to be a professional coach.

THE GOAL

The goal is not perfection. The goal is progress.

| Train with focus. Stay consistent. Enjoy the ball.

THE STANDARDS

TRAINING RULES.

Seven non-negotiables that turn home training into real development.

01 Master control before speed.

Speed only matters when the player can control the ball.

02 Train both feet.

The weak foot must be included every session.

03 Keep the ball close.

Small touches create control.

04 Stay light on your feet.

Good players move with balance and rhythm.

05 Use your eyes.

Look down when needed, but slowly learn to lift your head.

06 Quality over quantity.

Focused reps matter more than rushed reps.

07 Be creative after control.

Once the skill is clean, add rhythm, personality, and imagination.

Discipline creates freedom.

THE FRAMEWORK

THE JOGA+ TRAINING METHOD.

JOGA+ training combines structured repetition with creativity. Players need discipline, but they also need freedom to explore the ball.

Ball mastery is developed through five layers:

01Control

Can the player keep the ball close?

02Coordination

Can the player move the body and ball together?

03Rhythm

Can the player repeat movements smoothly?

04Creativity

Can the player combine skills and solve movement problems?

05Game Transfer

Can the player use the skill with confidence in real game moments?

THE JOGA+ STANDARD

The best training is not robotic. It is organized, focused, and alive.

BEFORE EVERY SESSION

WARM-UP ROUTINE.

5–7 minutes before every session.

The warm-up prepares the body, activates coordination, and helps players find rhythm before technical work.

01	Light Movement Jog, shuffle, skip, or move freely around the space.	60 SEC
02	Dynamic Mobility Ankle rolls, hip circles, leg swings, and light lunges.	90 SEC
03	Toe Taps Alternate feet on top of the ball with light touches.	60 SEC
04	Foundation Touches Move the ball side to side using the inside of both feet.	60 SEC
05	Sole Rolls Roll the ball across the body using the sole of the foot.	60 SEC
06	Free Ball Movement Move freely with the ball using any touches, turns, or skills.	60 SEC

COACHING POINTS

Stay light on the feet · Keep the ball close · Bend the knees · Use both feet · Start slow and build rhythm

The warm-up is not extra. It is the first step of quality training.

DRILL LIBRARY

TWENTY DRILLS. ONE BALL.

Each drill has a clear goal, setup, instructions, coaching points, common mistakes, a player challenge, and a progression. Train every rep with purpose and quality.

DRILL LIBRARY INTRO

WHAT IS BALL MASTERY?

Ball mastery is the relationship a player has with the ball when nothing else is on their mind. It's not tricks. It's not flair. It's clean, confident touches with every surface of the foot — at any speed, in any direction, under any kind of pressure.

WHY IT MATTERS

The best decision-makers on the pitch are the ones whose feet stop being a problem. Once the ball is no longer something to think about, the player's eyes come up and the game opens up.

HOW WE TRAIN IT

Short, daily, repeatable. Twenty minutes is the sweet spot — long enough for the body to learn, short enough for the brain to stay sharp. Every session in this guide follows that rule.

COACH'S NOTE

A quiet touch is a confident touch. If your player's foot is slapping the ball, slow them down. Speed is a byproduct of control, not a replacement for it.

FINAL NOTE

Week 4 is not about new drills. It is about connecting skills with rhythm, creativity, confidence, and speed.

FOR PARENTS

HOW TO SUPPORT WITHOUT OVERCOACHING.

Your role is not to be perfect. Your role is to help the player stay consistent, confident, and motivated.

Parents do not need to coach every touch. They need to support the habits that help players grow.

YOUR ROLE

THE PARENT ROLE.

Parents do not need to coach every detail. The most important role is to create the environment, encourage consistency, and help the player enjoy the process.

A player improves faster when training feels supported, not pressured.

01 · EFFORTEncourage Effort

Praise focus, attitude, and consistency more than perfect execution.

02 · ROUTINECreate Routine

Help the player choose training days and protect those times each week.

03 · PROGRESSTrack Progress

Use the progress tracker to notice small improvements over time.

The goal is not to control every rep. The goal is to help the player build better habits.

HEALTHY HABITS

SUPPORT THE RIGHT WAY.

Small habits from parents shape how players feel about training. Lead with patience and let the work do the teaching.

DOWhat Parents Should Do

- ✓ Encourage effort
- ✓ Keep training positive
- ✓ Help set a schedule
- ✓ Celebrate small improvements
- ✓ Record occasional videos for progress
- ✓ Ask questions after training
- ✓ Let the player make mistakes

AVOIDWhat Parents Should Avoid

- ✗ Overcorrecting every mistake
- ✗ Comparing the player to others
- ✗ Making training feel like punishment
- ✗ Focusing only on speed
- ✗ Interrupting every rep
- ✗ Showing frustration
- ✗ Expecting instant results

Confidence grows when players feel safe to try, fail, adjust, and try again.

COACHING THROUGH QUESTIONS

QUESTIONS THAT BUILD REFLECTION.

Good questions help players think like athletes. After a session, ask simple questions that help the player notice progress.

ASK AFTER EVERY SESSION

- What drill felt easiest today?
- What drill felt hardest today?
- Which foot felt more comfortable?
- What mistake did you fix?
- What skill improved a little?
- What do you want to improve next session?
- What made you feel confident today?

PARENT REMINDER

The best players are not built in one perfect session. They are built through repeated, focused habits over time.

Support the process. Celebrate progress. Keep the ball moving.

PROGRESS TRACKER

TRACK THE WORK. SEE THE GROWTH.

Players improve faster when they can see their progress.

Small wins become big progress when players track the work.

TRACK YOUR SESSIONS

4-WEEK TRAINING TRACKER.

Use this page to track completed sessions, effort, confidence, and weak foot progress.

FINAL MESSAGE

THIS IS ONLY THE BEGINNING.

Congratulations on completing Ball Mastery at Home.

If you followed this guide with focus and consistency, you have already taken an important step in your development.

Improvement does not happen only at team practice. It happens in the extra touches, the quiet work, the small corrections, and the decision to keep training even when nobody is watching.

Remember: confidence comes from preparation. The more comfortable you become with the ball, the more freedom you will feel in the game.

Keep training. Keep creating. Keep growing.

| The ball rewards the player who keeps showing up.
